

2017 ONLINE APPLICATION GUIDELINES

The Eugene O'Neill Theater Center supports writers and composers during the creation and development of new music theater projects at the National Music Theater Conference each summer. The authors of selected works will be awarded a two-week residency for rehearsals and script-in-hand public readings during June and July of 2017. During their residency, the creators are able to see and hear their work daily with a director, music director, and company of Equity performers; experiment with re-writes and revisions; and discuss their work in-depth with artistic staff, peers, visiting professionals, and audiences. A stipend, room, board, and transportation are provided for each artist selected.

- We support the development of all styles and genres of music theater, including operas and experimental works.
- The project must not have had a professional production, or be scheduled to have a professional production, prior to August 2017. A professional production means that the artists working on the show were compensated for their time, and that all of the theatrical elements one hopes to see in a production were present.
- Both original and adapted works are accepted, providing that the rights to any material not in the public domain have been granted in writing, and a copy is included with the application and materials submitted.
